Historical Performance and Manager's Discussion (Unaudited) December 31, 2017

Shelton Greater China Fund

Since 2009, Shelton International Equity team has been investing together using rigorous, bottom-up, fundamental stock selection to seek to deliver attractive risk-adjusted returns for our investors, and we are excited to be taking over as managers of the Shelton Greater China Fund ("The Fund", sym: SGCFX).

Market Overview

For the full year of 2017, The Fund delivered strong returns of +34.85%, but trailed the benchmark MSCI Golden Dragon Index return of +43.79%. Overall, it was a very strong year for investors.

Among the many developments in the country in 2017, China's Communist Party held its 19th National Congress meeting in October. President Xi effectively consolidated power after becoming only the fourth "core" leader in modern Chinese history. Many important issues were addressed at this twice-a-decade meeting including various social issues, widespread corruption, foreign access to local markets, and how the country may deal with its high level of indebtedness. Although details were lacking in the public remarks, it does appear that officials will not repeat their pledge to double GDP and per capita income after 2020 as they did for the 10 years starting from 2010. Over the longer-term this will help the country combat its need to hit unrealistically high annual growth targets fueled by excess credit growth. It is this credit growth that prompted both S&P and Moody's to downgrade the country's credit rating in 2017.

Additional positive developments were President Xi's desire to open the country up to foreign investors, a continuation of the closure of excess capacity in various industries, and eradicating dangerous speculation in the real estate market. Balancing out these more 'open-market' reforms were a continued strong commitment to overseeing some of the overall economy through reforming state-owned enterprises and preventing loss of state assets. Also promised was the "development of a mixed-ownership economy and the cultivation of globally competitive world class firms," according to officials.

In terms of market developments, technology was the standout sector in 2017. Tencent and Alibaba became the sixth and eighth largest companies in the world with total returns in 2017 of 114% and 96% respectively. These two companies together now make up approximately 18% of the MSCI Golden Dragon Index and 75% of the technology sector weighting. Consumer discretionary and healthcare also largely outperformed in 2017. Among the biggest underperforming sectors were telecom, industrials, and energy.

The Chinese market continues to evolve. The tightly controlled and closed nature of the internet in China has led to the creation of a few champions without outside interference from either the government or foreign competition. Meanwhile the state-owned enterprises continue to suck value (and capital) out of the market as the government struggles with how to restructure these companies.

Overall, despite the many challenges, we are encouraged with the latest reforms announced by the central government and continue to be optimistic about the growth prospects for the Chinese market over the long-term.

Performance Review

The Shelton Greater China Fund returned +34.85% for the year ending December 31, 2017.

Historical Performance and Manager's Discussion (Unaudited) December 31, 2017

Shelton BDC Income Fund

The Shelton BDC Income Fund (the "Fund", sym: LOANX/LOAIX) focuses its investments in securities of Business Development Companies ("BDCs") including common stock, preferred stock, convertible bonds and other debt. Under normal market conditions, at least 80% of the Fund's net assets will be invested in BDC related securities. The Fund's investment objective is to provide a high level of income with the potential for capital appreciation.

For the one-year period ending December 31, 2017, the Fund's Investor Class provided a 3.73% total return to shareholders, while the Fund's Institutional Class provided a 3.94% total return to shareholders. The Fund's benchmark, the Wells Fargo BDC Index (sym: WFBDC), returned 0.09% for the same period. At period-end, 100% of the Fund's investments were in U.S. domiciled securities. The breakdown of the portfolio was 82.89% listed BDCs, 0.36% Specialty Finance, 3.77% BDC Preferred and 9.52% cash.

BDCs rallied through the first few months of 2017, along with financials in an environment of likely fiscal stimulus and deregulation, and an improved business environment for middle market companies in particular. As the Fed Funds rate rose to 1% in March and then to 1.25% in June, investors began to pull money from BDCs as the yield advantage of BDCs (yielding 8-10%) over Treasuries diminished and the case for further rate hikes strengthened. In the second half of 2017, BDCs went sideways while the broader market, including financials, continued to march upward. This, we believe, is also primarily attributed to rising Treasury yields rendering BDC spreads less competitive.

From a fundamental standpoint, credit losses were higher than expected for the year which was troublesome given the strong economic growth the US experienced in 2017. We believe this underlines the importance of assessing BDC management teams and being selective in the space.

Looking ahead, despite the recent underperformance of BDCs, Shelton Capital Management is optimistic about specific types of BDC portfolios. Asset price levels have increased the risk/reward attractiveness and we believe the pricing of mid-market assets has significant room to run. In this environment, Shelton Capital Management looks for management teams well placed to generate attractive rates of return through organic investments.

There are a few legislative issues which may affect BDCs going forward. First, the impact of lower corporate tax rates should be positive, albeit limited in the BDC space. Because BDCs qualify as regulated investment companies, they are not subject to corporate-level taxes and thus are not directly impacted. However, the companies which BDCs lend to are likely to benefit from lower taxes, which should improve loan to value and credit metrics in BDC loan portfolios.

Finally, expectations in the market about the removal of the current Acquired Fund Fees and Expenses (AFFE) disclosure seem to be well-founded. This SEC requirement, passed in January 2007, requires a fund-of-funds' prospectus to include the operating expenses of the underlying funds and has had the unintended consequence of making BDCs ineligible for indices such as the Russell 2000 and S&P 500. A potential overturn of the rule may be a large technical positive and expand institutional ownership for larger BDCs.

We thank you for your investment and the confidence you have placed in the Shelton BDC Income Fund.

Historical Performance and Manager's Discussion (Unaudited) December 31, 2017

Shelton Real Estate Income Fund

The Shelton Real Estate Income Fund ("The Fund", sym: RENTX/RENIX) focuses its investments in real estate securities, including securities issued by real estate investment trusts (REITs). Under normal market conditions, at least 80% of its net assets will be invested in income producing real estate common equity, preferred equity and debt securities. The Fund's investment objective is to provide a high level of income with the potential for capital appreciation.

For the one-year period ending December 31, 2017, the Fund's Investor Class provided a 3.72% total return to shareholders, while the Fund's Institutional Class provided a 3.98% total return to shareholders. These results lagged the broader REIT market (as defined by the S&P U.S. REIT Index) which produced a total return of 4.3%. During the same time, the bond market (as defined by the Bloomberg/Barclays US Aggregate Bond Index) produced a 7.5% total return. The Fund had near full exposure to the U.S. stock market as of December 31, 2017, with a cash position at year-end of 4.4%.

2017 was a year characterized by volatility within the REIT market, driven early on in our opinion, by increasing risk-on sentiment stoked by fiscal stimulus and tax reform speculation, equity market momentum and exuberance, historically accommodative global central bank monetary policy, and relatively low inflation prospects. By the end of February 2017, the REIT market surged over 4%. However, through the first 10 days of March 2017, the S&P US REIT Index contracted by over 6.5%, erasing all of its year-to-date gains. Subsequently throughout 2017, the REIT market experienced seven additional periods whereby the S&P US REIT Index expanded or contracted by more than 4%. While The Fund also exhibited volatility in 2017, the magnitude relative to the S&P US REIT Index was significantly less, oscillating at a more subdued and generally upward trend. By the end of September 2017, the Fund's Investor Share Class had returned 3.9%, while our Investor Share Class had returned 4.1%, both in line with the S&P US REIT Index which returned 3.9%. However, starting in October 2017, the Fund began to move into a more defensive position, similar in timing and magnitude to 2016. Throughout October 2017, the Fund raised as much as 8% in cash. In early November, management decided to raise additional cash, taking advantage of robust outperformance by the Fund's ex-U.S. positions. Because of these decisions, the Fund held almost 14% cash by mid-November. Unfortunately, the broader REIT market staged a significant rally throughout the first two weeks of November 2017, rising by as much as 3.7%. During the same period, the Fund was also exposed to a few preferred REIT equity positions, which suffered disproportionately as interest rates and risk-on sentiment surged through the remainder of 2017. As a result, the Fund underperformed the S&P US REIT index by over 200 basis points during November and December 2017, which was the main culprit of our underperformance in 2017.

Moving forward, Shelton Capital Management remains optimistic about REIT valuations. We feel that commercial real estate fundamentals, while decelerating, remain sound. Supply across most sectors and markets remains disciplined, and even those sectors/markets with heightened supply levels, are expecting absorption to increase by mid-year 2018. Economic growth remains steady, extending a 9-year-old bull market, which is also supported by late-cycle fiscal stimulus here in the US, a solid job market and robust consumer sentiment and retail sales. In addition, modern-day REITs continue to provide investors with professional management, institutional asset quality, strong balance sheets and an increasing palette of property sectors to choose from. Investors are no longer constrained to traditional property types, but can now allocate among prisons, farmland/timber, single family homes, infrastructure, movie theaters, data centers and cellular towers. This expanding universe of emerging real estate property types may change the narrative describing real estate cycles, which has been traditionally focused solely on supply/demand. New and evolving real estate sectors have different fundamental demand drivers, which may result in lower correlations and provide an increasing opportunity set from which REIT investors can choose. For example, while Amazon has disrupted retailing channels and negatively impacted the shopping center and mall real estate sectors, emerging beneficiaries from this disruption include industrial real estate, data centers and cell towers. More distribution centers are needed to meet the logistic demands stemming from a growing service sector and e-commerce economy. In addition, given the rapid growth in cloud computing, 5G, and emerging trends in virtual reality and artificial intelligence, demand for data centers and cell towers is surging. Also, advances in medicine and biotechnology are helping to increase demand for outpatient medical facilities, life science campuses and even emergency-care facilities, which can now be found in your local shopping center. Baby Boomers, GenX, Millennials and GenZ are also each impacting real estate fundamentals in different ways. Boomers are living longer, increasing the need for senior housing and assisted living facilities in both rural and urban metros. The Millennial and GenZ cohorts are renting apartments longer and delaying home purchases, either due to affordability constraints or mobility preferences. At the same time, younger empty-nesters are migrating back into cities and renting. Finally, urbanization preferences among the GenX cohort is causing employers to relocate their headquarters into cities, creating more live, work and play communities. This not only helps office and multifamily absorption, but supports retail demand as well. Lastly, aging global demographics continue to drive the search for yield, providing a demand tailwind for both direct real estate.

However, risks remain to both fundamentals and sentiment. Volatility may return to equity markets reminding investors to take stock of their own risk tolerance. On balance however, we believe real estate related securities may continue provide a compelling investment opportunity as well as risk mitigating component to an investor's portfolio as we move through 2018.

We thank you for your support and the confidence you have placed in the Shelton Real Estate Income Fund.

Historical Performance and Manager's Discussion (Unaudited) December 31, 2017

Shelton Tactical Credit Fund

We are pleased to write the third full year shareholder letter for the Shelton Tactical Credit Fund ("the Fund", sym: DEBTX/DEBIX) which launched in December 2014. The Fund's investment objective is to seek current income and capital appreciation. We seek to achieve this objective using related credit assets on both the long and short side to generate an attractive rate of return and reduce risk. Portfolio construction is implemented with a relative value framework and looks across the entire balance sheet of a corporation from senior secured liabilities down through subordinated, equity-linked securities. This hedged approach is designed to generate performance that is less reliant on the direction of the overall market than a typical credit-based fund. The Fund has changed its fiscal year end to December 31.

Market Review

High-yield bond prices were higher during April and May as favorable backdrops for rates, stocks, and a light new-issue calendar outweighed resurfacing oil price volatility and a multi-year low for yields. Also supportive for returns across fixed income, the 10 year US Treasury yields reached 2.20%, 40bp below the high in mid-March. Meanwhile, stocks regained record-high levels with a solid 1Q earnings season and expectations for US tax reform supporting valuations.

High-yield remained strong throughout the summer, staggering briefly in August due to concerns related to tensions with North Korea only to rally into September and October supported by the strong stock market, rallying energy bonds and optimism surrounding the U.S. tax reform plan.

In November, high-yield bond prices endured a sharp downdraft and eventual recovery amid sector specific based selling and heavy retail withdrawals. High yield finished the year quietly, rallying slightly in the final week of the year.

In 2017, CCC-rated bonds outperformed higher-rated credits for a second consecutive year in 2017.

After three years of consecutive declines, primary market activity increased in 2017, with a volume of $322 billion.

Defaults were down 46% by volume vs 2016.

Portfolio Commentary

The Fund's investor class gained 3.34% and the insititutional class gained 3.65% for the fiscal year ending December 31, 2017, versus the Fund's benchmark, the Barclays U.S. Aggregate Bond Index, which returned 3.54% during this period. For the fiscal year ending April 30, 2017, the Fund's Investor Class gained 9.36% and the Institutional Class gained 9.56%.

Given the strong end of year performance in 2016, our belief was that the risk-reward proposition slowly moved from positive to negative on both the long and short side. Prices had little upside, shorts became too expensive and fundamentals did not justify taking significant positions either way. We compensated for this by positioning the portfolio to capture strong cash flows while avoiding directional bets on general movements in security prices. If volatility were to pick up dramatically at some point, we were ready to tactically adjust positioning if needed while avoiding initial losses and maintaining stable and attractive cash flows.

To be clear, 2017 was marked by complacency and listlessness. The key to managing a portfolio of leveraged credits was mitigating losses and owning attractively priced securities over the course of the year. Specifically, avoiding major pitfalls in sectors such as Retail, Telecommunications, and Consumer Products was a key to providing positive performance. While these headwinds persisted, we continued to focus on risk management, owning credits that we know well and not chasing performance for the sake of excess returns. Our belief is managing a consistent portfolio from a long-run perspective is the correct course of action, and we will continue to invest based on this viewpoint. While we believe there has been an overreaction to a certain extent, any large selloff will likely provide us with significant opportunities given positive fundamentals and the overall positive macro backdrop.

With this strategy in mind, the Fund owned shorter duration, high coupon bonds with an emphasis on companies with tangible assets and high relative cash flows. The top industry concentrations for the Fund were Industrials, Services, Telecom, and Technology. The Fund continues to avoid Oil, Oil Service, Commodity, Financials, and Real Estate sectors. We were active in the new issue market, incorporating several first-time issuers from the slow post-summer calendar into our core holdings. The relative smoothness of returns was the result of an eye toward more liquid investments and the ability to tactically re-allocate capital subsequent to the March lows.

We believe the assumption that all fixed income assets will be hurt with rising rates is a flawed one. We believe the probability of a spike in rates is low, and that a more likely scenario is one in which rates are range-bound and trend higher over a protracted timeframe as we have begun to see. However, should interest rates rise rapidly, we embrace the opportunity to deploy cash tactically as we have multiple times before. The Fund will look to invest in corporations where credit improvement will likely occur regardless of rates, owning shorter duration and less interest rate-sensitive bonds.

If rates move higher, we expect to become more active on the short side of the ledger, most likely in investment grade which we find to be attractively priced and an effective hedge against interest rates.

In an environment that can change on a dime, we believe portfolio construction that includes active hedging, tactical investing, and relative liquidity will be paramount. Keeping an “ear to the ground” will be as important as ever. The strategy of simply “owning the market” will not work. We believe passive investing will underperform a more active approach. The foundation of portfolio construction in uncertain times must be predicated on capital preservation and one which includes a wide set of investment tools. Delivering attractive risk adjusted returns will necessitate aggressive hedging, tactical re-allocation between asset classes, a laser focus on liquidity and the flexibility to change investment direction quickly. In our view, a strategic approach which marries top-down investing with bottom up asset selection will more effectively deliver returns that are less volatile and less subject to the weekly whims of the markets and central banks.

We thank you for your support and the confidence you have placed in the Shelton Tactical Credit Fund.

Historical Performance and Manager's Discussion (Unaudited) December 31, 2017

Shelton International Select Equity Fund

Since 2009, the team has been investing together using rigorous, bottom-up, fundamental stock selection to deliver attractive risk-adjusted returns for our investors.

For the Shelton International Select Equity Fund ("The Fund", sym) our investment philosophy is centered around the concept of the competitive corporate life cycle. Our framework establishes a level global playing field from which to assess a company's ability to create value for shareholders. We recognize that companies evolve over time, and that the risks they face and the opportunities they capitalize on will differ at the various stages of their development. We directly measure this relationship between a company's competitive opportunities and challenges, its economic performance, and its valuation in the equity market as it travels along the corporate life cycle. And, in doing so, we believe we have established a solid framework from which to generate more consistent excess returns for our investors over time. The Fund has changed its fiscal year end to December 31.

Market Overview

The twelve-month period ending December 31, 2017 was a strong one for international equity investors, with the benchmark MSCI All Country World Ex-US index rising 27.19%.

The general tone for investing in 2017 was set in the first quarter of year. Driven by reflationary expectations, such as rising interest rates, accelerating global Gross Domestic Product (GDP) growth and the prospect of US government stimulus, international equity markets took off in January and never looked back.

Perhaps unsurprisingly, politics once again played an important role in 2017. In the US, the inauguration of Donald Trump as President delivered a clear change in direction for US policy and investor sentiment, with the return of a more business-friendly agenda emphasizing reduced regulation, tax reform, and infrastructure investment. Despite his combative style and unpredictable nature, investors cheered his message of smaller government and more growth-oriented policy.

But it was not only in the US where an election revealed popular discontent and the desire for change. Europeans went to the polls in France, Germany, Spain, and the Netherlands, and although the results of the elections were less dramatic than that of the US and UK in 2016, the establishment continue to suffer defeats. In France, Marine Le Pen and her National Front Party shocked the country by making it into the second round of elections. In Spain, the Catalan region voted for independence. Even in Germany, where Angela Merkel succeeded in winning her fourth term as Chancellor, her Christian Democratic Union/Christian Social Union (CDU/CSU) party was significantly weakened in the final election results while the right-wing populist Alternative for Deutschland (AfD) party gained ground.

Despite all the political noise, corporate earnings growth remained resilient in 2017. Investors around the globe applauded the current paradigm of 'growth without inflation'. Non-US equity markets delivered strong returns with relatively low volatility as central banks continued to support economic growth with relatively easy monetary conditions. US investor returns further benefited from a weaker USD, which contributed nearly half of the market's full year returns.

Leading the way in 2017 were global emerging markets, propelled higher by accelerating global economic growth, continued low inflation, and a weaker USD. Regionally, Asia Pacific ex Japan was the strongest and most consistent performer throughout the year. Asia Pacific strength was supported by a number of factors, including stronger commodity prices, the ongoing recovery in Asian regional and Chinese economic growth, and Technology shares. Meanwhile, European equities performed well in the first half of the calendar year but then treaded water in the second half, struggling to gain further ground beyond the support of the strengthening Euro. Finally, Japanese equity market performance was quite the opposite, lagging for most of the year before finishing strongly in the fourth quarter.

In terms of sectors, strong performance was realized across most economically-sensitive areas of the market, including Materials, Industrials, Consumer Discretionary, and Financials, all of which stand to benefit from improving economic conditions and, in the case of Financials, somewhat higher interest rates. But the most exceptional performance was gained in Technology shares, which delivered returns on average nearly double that of the overall international equity market, on the strength of internet and semiconductor companies. The biggest laggards, on the other hand, were Utilities, Telecoms, and Healthcare. Utilities suffered as a result of their general defensiveness in a rising market and their perceived interest-rate sensitivity as bond proxies. Telecoms, most notably the large integrated incumbent operators across, continued to struggle with increased regulation, stronger new entrant competition, rising content costs and a general lack of pricing power. Lastly, the global Healthcare industry grappled with a lack of new product innovation combined with a more challenging market environment in which US drug price increases are no longer guaranteed, especially not for me-too product or based product-life extensions. Lastly, Energy shares struggled to perform in 2017, but this relatively poor performance masks a strong recovery in the second half of the year.

Performance Review

The Fund returned +35.30% (Institutional class–no load), +34.94% (Investor class–no load) for the year ending December 31, 2017, strongly outperforming the Fund’s benchmark, the MSCI ACWI ex US Index, which returned +27.19% during this period.

CRH PLC	5.62	-0.67

We are happy to report the portfolio outperformed across all major regions, Continental Europe, the UK, Japan, and Asia Pacific ex Japan, in 2017. The top contributors to outperformance were Japan, Asia ex Japan, and Continental Europe, with strong stock selection registered in each region. While in the UK, good stock selection was further assisted by an underweight allocation. Lastly, the Fund contributed positively across both North America and Latin America, but detracted minimally in the Middle East and North Africa (MENA) region.

Overall the portfolio delivered broad-based sector outperformance. Financials, most notably across developed and emerging Asia, was the largest positive contributor to returns. But the portfolio also outperformed meaningfully in the Consumer Discretionary, Technology, Healthcare, and Industrials sectors, while adding incrementally in Telecommunications, Utilities, Consumer Staples and Materials. Finally, the portfolio modestly detracted in two of the smallest sector groups, Energy and Real Estate.

As always, the Shelton International Select Equity strategy seeks to deliver its excess returns over time through superior stock selection. Amongst the top performers over the course of the year was Yaskawa Electric Corp. Based in Japan, Yaskawa Electric is one of the world's leading suppliers of servo motors, controllers, drives, and industrial robots. Over the coming decade, as industrial automation, advanced robotics and artificial intelligence transform the factory floor and large segments of the larger industrial economy with increased productivity and improved efficiency, Yaskawa Electric is well-positioned to capture the opportunity. Another top contributor was Start Today, Japan's leading online fashion retailer. The company, through its Zozotown online platform, has continued to see rapid growth in the number of brands, users, and gross merchandise value. With Start Today still in the early stages of its expansion, there remains considerable scope to drive greater merchandise value and improved profitability with more partners, an expanded product offering, and greater overall scale. Lastly, Chinese internet giant, Tencent, with Wechat mobile chat service and leading online and mobile gaming platform, has continued to expand its reach into new adjacent retail, online, and mobile business areas. We anticipate that one of the largest untapped opportunities for Tencent is a greater monetization of its user base with increased advertising placement and higher ad rates throughout its platform of services. Over time, this additional profit driver has the potential to deliver significant further value for shareholders over the next several years.

Although rising modestly in 2017, Ireland's CRH PLC underperformed the overall portfolio and detracted from performance as changing political priorities delayed much-needed US highway and infrastructure spending legislation. Without a doubt, major investment in our nation's roads, airports, ports, and other major infrastructure projects are needed, and as one of the world's largest building materials groups and the leading supplier to US roadbuilding, CRH will likely benefit significantly over time. Additionally, Murata Manufacturing, a leading supplier of passive components to electronic devices, detracted as production costs rose and yields suffered on a newly launched product component. Although the higher costs were disappointing in the short term, the issues appear to have been a temporary setback as yields have already begun to recover. Lastly, UK-based oil major BP PLC lagged the market, along with other Energy companies, as the price of crude languished throughout most of 2017.

We thank you for your investment in the Fund and for your continued support of our firm.

About Your Fund's Expenses (Unaudited) December 31, 2017

The Funds' advisor, Shelton Capital Management ("Shelton Capital"), believes it is important for you to understand the impact of costs on your investment. All mutual funds have operating expenses. As a shareholder of the Funds, you incur two types of costs: (1) transaction costs, including sales charges (loads) on purchase payments, reinvested dividends, or other distributions, redemption fees, and exchange fees; and (2) ongoing costs, including management fees, distribution fees and other Fund expenses. Operating expenses, which are deducted from the Funds' gross income, directly reduce the investment return of the Funds. The Funds' expenses are expressed as a percentage of its average net assets. This figure is known as the expense ratio. This example is intended to help you understand your ongoing cost (in dollars) of investing in the Funds and to compare these costs with the ongoing costs of investing in other mutual funds.

The examples are based on an investment of $1,000 invested at the beginning of the period and held for the entire period from July 1, 2017 to December 31, 2017.

Actual Expenses

The first line of the tables below provide information about actual account values and actual expenses. You may use the information in this line, together with the amount you invested, to estimate the expenses you have paid over the period. Simply divide your account value by $1,000 (for example, an $8,600 account value divided by $1,000 = 8.6), then multiply the result by the number in the first line under the heading entitled "Expenses Paid During Period" to estimate the expenses you paid on your account during this period.

Hypothetical Example for Comparison Purposes

The second line of the table provides information about hypothetical account values and hypothetical expenses based on the Funds' actual expense ratio and an assumed rate of return of 5% per year before expenses, which is not the Funds' actual return. The hypothetical account values and expenses may not be used to estimate the actual ending account balance or expenses you paid for the period. You may use this information to compare the ongoing costs of investing in the Funds and other funds. To do so, compare this 5% hypothetical example with the 5% hypothetical examples that appear in the shareholder reports of the other funds. The Funds do not charge any sales charges. There is a redemption fee of 2% for shares of the Greater China Fund purchased that are held for 90 days or less from the date of purchase.

Please note that the expenses shown in the tables are meant to highlight your ongoing costs only and do not reflect any transactional cost, such as sales charges (loads), redemption fees, or exchange fees. Therefore, the second line of the tables are useful in comparing ongoing costs only, and will not help you determine the relative total costs of owning different funds. In addition, if these transactional costs were included, your costs would have been higher. The calculations assume no shares were bought or sold during the period. Your actual costs may have been higher or lower, depending on the amount of your investment and the timing of any purchases or redemptions.

More information about the Funds' expenses can be found in this report. For additional information on operating expenses and other shareholder costs, please refer to the Funds' prospectus.

The Trust follows the investment company accounting and reporting guidance of the Financial Accounting Standards Board (“FASB”) Accounting Standards Codification Topic 946, “Financial Services – Investment Companies”.

(a) Security Valuation — Inputs used to value corporate debt securities generally include relative credit information, observed market movements, sector news, U.S. Treasury yield curve or relevant benchmark curve, and other market information, which may include benchmark yields, reported trades, broker-dealer quotes, issuer spreads, benchmark securities, bids, offers, and reference data, such as market research publications, when available (“Other Market Information”). Equity securities listed on a national or international exchange are valued at the last reported sales price. Futures contracts are valued at the settle price, depending on the exchange the contract trades on, typically as of 4:15 p.m., Eastern Time. Municipal securities are valued by an independent pricing service at a price determined by a matrix pricing method. This technique generally considers such factors as yields or prices of bonds of comparable quality, type of issue, coupon, maturity, ratings and general market conditions. U.S. government securities for which market quotations are readily available are valued at the mean between the closing bid and asked prices provided by an independent pricing service. U.S. agency securities consisting of mortgage pass-through certificates are valued using dealer quotations provided by an independent pricing service. U.S. Treasury Bills are valued at amortized cost which approximates market value. Securities with remaining maturities of 60 days or less are valued on the amortized cost basis as reflecting fair value.

Securities for which market quotes are not readily available from the Trust’s third-party pricing service are valued at fair value, determined in good faith and in accordance with procedures adopted by the Board of Trustees. The Board has delegated to its Pricing Committee the responsibility for determining the fair value, subject to the Board oversight and the review of the pricing decisions at its quarterly meetings.

(b) Federal Income Taxes — No provision is considered necessary for federal income taxes. The Funds intend to qualify for and elect the tax treatment applicable to regulated investment companies under the Internal Revenue Code and to distribute all of their taxable income to shareholders.

(c) Security Transactions, Investment Income and Distributions to Shareholders — Security transactions are recorded on the trade date. Interest income is recorded on the accrual basis. Dividend income is recorded on the ex-dividend date. Withholding taxes on foreign dividends have been provided for, in accordance with the Trust’s understanding of the applicable country’s tax rules and rates. Distributions to shareholders are recorded on the ex-dividend date. Income distributions and capital gain distributions are determined in accordance with income tax regulations which may differ from accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. These differences are primarily due to differing treatments for PFICs, wash sales, REIT adjustments and late year ordinary income.

Distributions received from investments in securities that represent a return of capital or capital gains are recorded as a reduction of cost of investment or as a realized gain, respectively. The calendar year-end amounts of ordinary income, capital gains, and return of capital included in distributions received from a Fund’s investments in real estate investment trusts (“REITs”) are reported to the Fund after the end of the calendar year; accordingly, a Fund estimates these amounts for accounting purposes until the characterization of REIT distributions is reported to the Fund after the end of the calendar year. Estimates are based on the most recent REIT distribution information available. Short-term capital gain distributions are treated as ordinary income distributions for tax purposes.

These “Book/tax” differences are considered either temporary (i.e., deferred losses, capital loss carry forwards) or permanent in nature. To the extent these differences are permanent in nature, such amounts are reclassified within the composition of net assets based on their federal tax basis treatment; temporary differences do not require reclassification.

(d) Foreign Currency Translation — Investment securities and other assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currencies are translated into U.S. dollar amounts at the date of valuation. Purchases and sales of investment securities and income and expense items denominated in foreign currencies are translated into U.S. dollar amounts on the respective dates of such transactions. The Trust does not isolate that portion of the results of operations resulting from changes in foreign exchange rates on investments from the fluctuations arising from changes in market prices of securities held. Such fluctuations are included with the net realized and unrealized gain or loss from investments.

Reported net realized foreign exchange gains or losses arise from sales of foreign currencies, currency gains or losses realized between the trade and settlement dates on securities transactions, and the difference between the amounts of dividends, interest, and foreign withholding taxes recorded on the company’s books and the U.S. dollar equivalent of the amounts actually received or paid. Net unrealized foreign exchange gains and losses arise from changes in the fair values of assets and liabilities, other than investments in securities at fiscal period end, resulting from changes in exchange rates.

(e) Concentration — The Greater China Fund concentrates its investments in publicly traded equities issued by corporations located in People’s Republic of China, Hong Kong, Taiwan, or Singapore. The portfolio involves considerations not typically associated with investing in U.S. securities. In addition, the Trust is more susceptible to factors adversely affecting the economies of those countries than a fund not concentrated in these issuers to the same extent. Since the Trust’s investment securities are primarily denominated in New Taiwan Dollars (“NT$”) and Hong Kong Dollars (“HKD”), changes in the relationships of the NT$ and the HKD to the USD may also significantly affect the value of the investments and the earnings of the Trust.

The Real Estate Income Fund concentrates its investments in real estate securities (i.e., securities of issuers in the real estate industry), including securities issued by REITs. The Fund invests substantially all (and under normal market conditions, at least 80%) of its net assets (plus any borrowings for investment purposes) in income producing real estate securities. The Advisor evaluates securities based primarily on the relative attractiveness of income and secondarily considers their potential for capital appreciation. The Advisor considers real estate securities to be securities issued by a company that (a) derives at least 50% of its revenues from the ownership, construction, financing, management or sale of commercial, industrial or residential real estate, or (b) has at least 50% of its assets invested in such real estate. The Advisor plans to sell a security if, in the judgment of the portfolio managers, the security’s income potential has been compromised, an issuer’s fundamentals have deteriorated or may deteriorate or a more attractive investment opportunity is identified. The Fund invests in both equity and debt securities, and invests to a substantial degree in securities issued by REITs. REITs are pooled investment vehicles that own interests in real estate, real-estate related loans or similar interests, and their revenue primarily consists of rent derived from owned, income producing real estate properties and capital gains from the sale of such properties. A majority of the REITs in which the Fund invests are generally considered by the Advisor to be medium- or small-capitalization companies. The Fund will not invest in non-traded REITs that are sponsored, managed or distributed by affiliates of the Advisor. Equity securities in which the Fund may invest include common and preferred stocks, convertible securities, rights and warrants to purchase common stock and depositary receipts. Although the Advisor anticipates that the Fund will invest a substantial portion of its assets in equity securities, the Fund may invest up to 100% of its net assets in debt securities of any maturity, duration or credit rating. Debt securities in which the Fund may invest include corporate debt obligations and CMBS. Debt securities acquired by the Fund may also include high-yield debt securities (commonly referred to as “junk” bonds) issued or guaranteed by real estate companies or other companies. The Fund invests in securities across all market capitalization ranges. The Fund may invest up to 15% of its net assets in illiquid securities.

The BDC Income Fund invests substantially all (and under normal market conditions, at least 80%) of its net assets (plus any borrowings for investment purposes) in common stocks and other equity securities of business development companies (“BDCs”) that are traded on one or more nationally recognized securities exchanges. The equity securities in which the Fund may invest consist of common stocks, securities convertible into common stocks; and preferred stocks. In addition, although the Fund typically invests in equity securities, the Fund may invest up to 20% of its net assets in debt securities of BDCs and other issuers of any maturity, duration or credit rating.

The Tactical Credit Fund aims to use related credit asset classes on both the long and short side to generate an attractive rate of return with low volatility. Portfolio construction is implemented with a relative value framework and looks across the entire balance sheet of a corporation from senior secured down through subordinated, equity-linked bonds. This hedged approach is designed to generate performance that is less reliant on the direction of the overall market than a typical credit-based fund.

(f) Currency Risk — The Fund invests in securities of foreign issuers, including American Depositary Receipts. These markets are subject to special risks associated with foreign investments not typically associated with investing in U.S. markets. Because the foreign securities in which the Fund may invest generally trade in currencies other than the U.S. dollar, changes in currency exchange rates will affect the Fund’s NAV, the value of dividends and interest earned and gains and losses realized on the sale of securities. Because the NAV for the Fund is determined on the basis of U.S. dollars, the Fund may lose money by investing in a foreign security if the local currency of a foreign market depreciates against the U.S. dollar, even if the local currency value of the Fund’s holdings goes up. Generally, a strong U.S. dollar relative to these other currencies will adversely affect the value of the Fund’s holdings in foreign securities.

(g) Use of Estimates in Financial Statements — In preparing financial statements in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America, management makes estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements, as well as the reported amounts of income and expense during the year. Actual results may differ from these estimates.

(h) Share Valuations — The net asset value (“NAV”) per share of each Fund is calculated by dividing the sum of the value of the securities held by the Fund, plus cash or other assets, minus all liabilities (including estimated accrued expenses) by the total number of shares outstanding of the Fund, rounded to the nearest cent. A Fund’s shares will not be priced on the days on which the NYSE is closed for trading. The offering and redemption price per share of each Fund is equal to a Fund’s NAV per share.

(i) Accounting for Uncertainty in Income Taxes — The Funds recognize the tax benefits of uncertain tax positions only where the position is “more likely than not” to be sustained assuming examination by tax authorities. Management has analyzed the Fund’s tax positions, and has concluded that no liability for unrecognized tax benefits should be recorded related to uncertain tax positions taken on returns filed for open tax years (2014-2016), or expected to be taken in the Fund’s 2017 tax returns. The Funds identify its major tax jurisdictions as U.S. Federal, however the Funds are not aware of any tax positions for which it is reasonably possible that the total amounts of unrecognized tax benefits will change materially in the next twelve months.

(j) Fair Value Measurements — The Funds utilize various methods to measure the fair value of most of its investments on a recurring basis. U.S. GAAP establishes a hierarchy that prioritizes inputs to valuation methods. The three levels of inputs are:

Level 1 – Unadjusted quoted prices in active markets for identical assets or liabilities that the company has the ability to access.

Level 2 – Observable inputs other than quoted prices included in Level 1 that are observable for the asset or liability, either directly or indirectly. These inputs may include quoted prices for the identical instrument on an inactive market, prices for similar instruments, interest rates, prepayment speeds, credit risk, yield curves, default rates and similar data.

Level 3 – Unobservable inputs for the asset or liability, to the extent relevant observable inputs are not available, representing the Fund’s own assumptions about the assumptions a market participant would use in valuing the asset or liability, and would be based on the best information available.

The availability of observable inputs can vary from security to security and is affected by a wide variety of factors, including, for example, the type of security, whether the security is new and not yet established in the marketplace, the liquidity of markets, and other characteristics particular to the security. To the extent that valuation is based on models or inputs that are less observable or unobservable in the market, the determination of fair value requires more judgment. Accordingly, the degree of judgment exercised in determining fair value is greatest for instruments categorized in Level 3.

The inputs used to measure fair value may fall into different levels of the fair value hierarchy. In such cases, for disclosure purposes, the level in the fair value hierarchy within which the fair value measurement falls in its entirety, is determined based on the lowest level input that is significant to the fair value measurement in its entirety.

The following table summarizes the valuation of the Trust’s securities at December, 31, 2017 using fair value hierarchy:
